You don't have to download WordPress, create a database and upload files by hand. The installer in cPanel does all of it in a couple of minutes.

Installing

- 1 In cPanel, look for Softaculous Apps Installer (or the WordPress icon) and open it.

- 2 Click Install on WordPress.

- 3 Choose the domain, and leave the directory field empty if you want the site at the root (yourdomain.ao) rather than in a subfolder.

- 4 Set the site name, and above all the admin user and a strong password - never leave the suggested "admin".

- 5 Install. In a minute or two you'll get the site address and the administration address (/wp-admin).

Right after installing

1

Delete themes and plugins you won't use. Unused code is still a way in - see how sites get compromised.

2

Check the site opens over HTTPS. The free certificate is automatic, and you can force it - see how to redirect HTTP to HTTPS.

3

Keep WordPress, themes and plugins updated. This is the single biggest factor in whether a site gets hacked.

Installing over an existing site erases it. If you already have a site in that folder, the installer overwrites it. Take a backup first - see how to restore your data.

Prefer a different application? The same installer offers Joomla, PrestaShop, Moodle and dozens of others, with the same one-click process.

Installed it but the site doesn't open? We'll take a look.
